

FOOD AND DRINK POLICY

It's nearly time for camp!! All meals at camp are provided but if you would like to bring extra snacks or drinks for during your breaks or after campers have gone to bed, please read on! This document includes guidelines for the Food and Drink List at camp, Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) and a list of the items you can bring (the most common allergens in the ingredients are highlighted in bold and underlined).

AT CAMP

On arrival you will be asked to sign an agreement to ensure you understand the importance of the Food and Drink List and that you agree to adhere to the guidelines outlined below. We hope the FAQs will answer your questions about why we have restrictions around food and drink, and why it is so important to keep to this specific list.

EXPECTATIONS

1. Restrictions on food and drink apply from the moment you arrive at camp, to the moment you leave.
2. Food and drink that is brought into camp must be the same brand, flavour and packet size as detailed on the Food and Drink List.
3. Food and drink on this list can only be consumed by volunteers on their breaks and after the campers have gone to bed, except water, OTW squash, OTW hot drinks and biscuits that are also used for Cabin Chat.
4. Food and drink cannot be consumed in activity areas or bedrooms, except water and OTW squash.
5. Volunteers cannot buy or give ANY food or drink from the list to campers. The only food and drink to be given to campers from the list are those provided by OTW.
6. If you have a Specialised Diet Plan and you think this will impact on your ability to follow the guidelines above, please contact us prior to camp.

OTW will take breaches of the list very seriously. Any volunteers found to be deliberately breaching the Food and Drink Policy may be sent home. If you have any questions about the guidelines or FAQs, please contact us at volunteering@otw.org.uk or 02392 477 110.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Why does the Food and Drink List exist?

The safety of all our campers, volunteers and staff is important to OTW and those who have severe allergies need to feel safe at camp. By having the Food and Drink Policy in place limits the number of allergens that they may come into contact with and reducing the risk of a life-threatening reaction (anaphylaxis).

There are lots of things that people can be allergic to, but there are 14 most common allergens. At camp, we restrict the allergens present to 4. This means that we can reduce the risk of anaphylaxis.

What will happen if volunteers bring or consume food or drink that is not on the Food and Drink List?

On arrival at camp, volunteers will be required to declare any food on them that is not on the food list. If volunteers do not follow the guidelines in place and deliberately breach the policy, they may be sent home.

Restrictions around food start from the moment we arrive at camp. You may think it's safe to eat things that are not on the Food and Drink List before campers arrive, but by doing so we could be contaminating areas with allergens which would pose a risk to campers at a later date.

If you bring food that is not on the food list, we will ask you to put it in the bin or leave it in your car.

Does the food and drink have to be the same packet size, brand and flavour?

Yes, the items on the Food and Drink List have been selected due to their ingredients and the way they are manufactured. If you bring a different flavour, brand or packet size, the ingredients may vary and will not have been approved to be at camp.

Why do we have specific drinks on the Food and Drink List?

Like food, drinks can contain ingredients that are allergens. Although some drinks may not have any of the common allergens in their ingredients, children and adults can still be allergic to other ingredients they contain.

To minimise the risk to campers we have selected brands and flavours of drinks that volunteers can drink. Due to this, volunteers are unable to bring their own devices to make drinks, e.g. coffee machines.

Where and when can volunteers have food and drink from the Food and Drink List?

On breaks and once campers have gone to bed, volunteers can have food and drink from the list

The biscuits on the list that are also used for Cabin Chat can be eaten in the Cabin Chat areas once campers have gone to bed, the Beach Hut and the office.

If a team has an allergy to any of the drinks or biscuits provided by OTW, we will be able to remove the item with the allergen and provide a substitute.

No food or drink can be consumed in bedrooms or activity areas, except water and OTW squash.

What should you do if you have consumed food and drink from the Food and Drink List?

If you have consumed food or drink you must ensure you have removed all traces of food or drink, cleaned the hard surfaces with warm soapy water and washed your hands immediately. Food and drink should be stored in a sealed bag in your room and should never be left in an area where campers could access it. The campers in your team may not have any allergies, however you may be unaware of campers in other teams that do.

Can campers have other food or drink outside of the dining hall and Cabin Chat areas?

Sometimes campers may require specialist diets outside of mealtimes or if they become unwell. If this is the case, we will risk assess where they can safely eat these things.

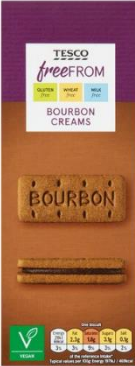

Why do some items on the Food and Drink List change each year?

Each year we review the Food and Drink List. If ingredients change or their manufacturing process changes, which means they contain additional allergens, we remove them from the list and where possible we will always try to find an alternative.

BISCUITS AND HOT DRINKS

OTW will provide the following biscuits and hot chocolate for teams during cabin chat.
